Guest of Honour

Tommy Gormley

First Assistant Director & Producer

Tommy Gormley is a highly respected First Assistant Director & Producer, known for his work on some of the biggest blockbuster films in the industry. Originally from Glasgow, Scotland, Tommy has worked alongside renowned directors such as J.J. Abrams, Patty Jenkins, and George Lucas, contributing to iconic films like Star Wars: The Force Awakens, Wonder Woman 1984, and the popular Mission: Impossible series.

Passionate about his role in the industry, Tommy states, "Being the First Assistant Director on a major movie might just be the best job in the world. It is a pivotal role; putting you at the heart of the process".

With a career spanning several decades, his expertise in large-scale action sequences, complex location shoots, and managing large crews has earned him recognition and acclaim across the film industry. He was awarded the 'Outstanding Contribution to Craft' accolade at the 2014 British Academy Scotland Awards'. Tommy's exceptional organisational skills and leadership on set are credited with helping to bring ambitious cinematic visions to life. He continues to be a sought-after professional in both Hollywood and international cinema.

Tommy remains a passionate supporter of the film industry in Scotland advocating for increased investment and development of the industry here. In 2010 Tommy and his wife, Sarah, formed the production company Little White Rose Films, to try to marry that talent with the great material we have in Scotland.
